4. The sale of any Book, Painting, Engraving, Print, Furniture, Works of Art, or any other article, is not to be set aside on account of any error in the description. All articles are exposed for Public Exhibition one or more days, and are sold just as they are without recourse. All books are presumed to be perfect unless otherwise expressed, and are collated as far as practicable when catalogued; but the sale of any book or books cannot be invalidated on account of any stained, foxed, torn, mended, facsimile, written on, stamped, or short leaves of text, plates, maps or diagrams, or want of title, frontispiece, table of contents, index, or list of plates, or on account of the publication of any subsequent volume, supplement, appendix or plates. All manuscripts and autographs, all magazines and reviews, all books in lots, and all pamphlets in lots or volumes, all single volumes or sets, will be sold with all their faults, imperfections and errors of description. The sale of any illustrated book, lot of prints or drawings is not to be set aside on account of any error in the enumeration of the number of volumes or pieces, or other errors of description.

5. To prevent inaccuracy in delivery and inconvenience in the settlement of the Purchases, no Lot can, on any account, be removed during the sale.

6. Upon failure of complying with the above conditions, the money deposited in part payment shall be forfeited; all Lots uncleared within the time aforesaid shall be re-sold by Public or Private Sale, and the deficiency (if any) attending such re-sale shall be made good by the Defaulter at this Sale, together with all charges attending the same. This Condition is without prejudice to the right of the Auctioneers to enforce the contract made at this sale, without such re-sale if they think fit.

PORTER C. BLISS.

The following account of the life of the late Porter C. Bliss, who died on the morning of Monday, February 2nd, 1885, appeared in the columns of the New York Times shortly before his death under the caption of—"A Remarkable Career—Incidents in the Life of an American Journalist—Varied Adventures—Tortured in South America—A Man of Many Tongues and Accomplishments"—:

Porter Cornelius Bliss, A. M., who is now lying on a cot in St. Luke's Hospital, under treatment for aneurism, has had a more eventful and interesting career than that of almost any other American journalist, and some portions of his history read more like chapters from a romance than the record of adventures in real life. Mr. Bliss is but 46 years old, having been born on the Cattaraugus Reservation of Seneca Indians, in Erie County, this State, Dec. 23, 1838. He studied at Hamilton and Yale, and in 1860 began his travels by a tour through Maine, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, undertaken in the service of several Boston societies, to investigate the condition of the Indian tribes, a subject in which he had taken a deep interest from boyhood. After fulfilling this commission, in 1861, he went to Washington, hoping to secure a position in the Interior Department, which would give him the opportunity to continue his studies of the Indians beyond the Mississippi; but, although he went to President Lincoln armed with recommendations from such men as Longfellow, Oliver Wendell Holmes and the historian Bancroft, he only succeeded in securing a clerkship in the department, a position of which his energetic nature soon wearied, and, when General James Watson Webb was made Minister to Brazil, in the latter part of 1861, Mr. Bliss was appointed his private secretary. In 1862, when General Webb surrendered his office, Mr. Bliss, instead of returning with him, made a trip to Buenos Ayres, and three days after arriving there he was commissioned by the Argentine Republic to explore the Indian country known as the Grand Chaco, an immense desert inhabited by Indian tribes. He spent eight months in this service, and during that time acquainted himself with various Indian dialects, and studied the antiquities of the country and the habits of the natives. The results of his explorations were published by the Government, and are standard authorities on the Indian tribes of the Grand Chaco.

For a short time after this Mr. Bliss edited a monthly periodical in Buenos Ayres, which was called the River Platte Magazine. Then he went to Paraguay, where his friend Charles A. Washburne was serving as United States Minister. Mr. Washburne made him his private secretary in 1866, and he was appointed by President Lopez to write a history of Paraguay. While this work was in progress, Lopez declared war against Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine Republic, and from this event the trouble of the young historian began. Knowing that he had come from Brazil, the Paraguay detectives suspected him of hostility to Lopez, and his footsteps were dogged for weeks and months. Finally the archives of the Government were closed to him, and he was informed that his contract was at an end, and that he would not be paid for his work. Minister Washburne in the meantime had offered his mediation between Lopez and the enemy, and secured a treaty with the understanding that if Lopez would leave the country his life should be spared. This Lopez declined to do, and the enemy bombarded the city. Mr. Washburne had resigned his position as Minister, and a boat was prepared to take him away. Mr. Bliss started for this boat, but was captured by the police of Lopez, with a Mr. Masterson, and thrown into a dungeon until night, when both were strapped to the backs of mules and carried to the army headquarters, a day's journey. Here they were scourged and tortured by want of food and persecuted in every conceivable way to force them to confess that they had conspired against Lopez and his Government. Mr. Bliss's head was tied to his feet for hours at a time, and as an even more cruel form of torture he was laid on his face and a terrible pressure was put on the small of his back. He had been arrested on September 10, 1865, and it was December 10, a period of three months, before he was finally relieved from imprisonment and persecution, on the demand of the United States Government, enforced by an American squadron.

"When Mr. Bliss reached Washington, after his rough experience in Paraguay, he was made translator to the State Department, a position which his extensive knowledge of languages qualified him excellently to fill. He had learned Spanish in three weeks, and he had a remarkable talent for acquiring languages and dialects. At his request the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House investigated the charges made against him in Paraguay by the Lopez Government and declared them unfounded. After serving a few months as translator, he took editorial charge of the Washington Chronicle, in the Winter of 1869, and held this position until July, 1870, when President Grant appointed him Secretary of Legation to Mexico. In this capacity he served until July, 1874—two years under Minister Thomas H. Nelson, of Indiana, and two under the Hon. John W. Foster, now Minister to Spain. Here, while attending to his clerical work as Secretary, he found time to study and write on the history, geography and condition of Mexico and on American enterprises in that republic. He served as interpreter between Generals Rosecrans and Palmer, the first promoters of an American railroad in Mexico, and the Government of the country, and did a great deal of clerical work for England, France and Spain, who had no representatives in Mexico at the time. For three months at the close of 1872 he served as acting Minister or Charge d'Affaires in the absence of the Minister. He became an active member of the Mexican Geographical and Statistical Society, and was Chairman of the Committee on Archaeological Explorations, in which capacity he visited and excavated the sites of the most remarkable ruins in the Valley of Mexico, reports on which were published in the bulletins of the Society. In the midst of all these arduous duties he still found time to do something for humanity's sake. He succeeded in saving from execution three prominent officers of the insurrectionary forces headed by General, now President, Diaz, in the revolution of 1872. These officers had been captured, tried by a drum-head court-martial, and condemned to death within forty-eight hours at the City of Puebla. One of them, a Colonel Meyer, was an Argentine by birth, and had rendered distinguished services to the Union Army during our own civil war, and the State Department on this account had once before interceded for him and secured his release from imprisonment. Mr. Bliss, after spending an entire day fruitlessly in the attempt to interest the Cabinet officers in the fate of the condemned men, finally at eleven o'clock at night, when they were to be shot at daybreak, almost forced his way into the presence of President Juarez, and succeeded in getting the execution suspended by a telegraphic order. President Juarez died himself within two weeks of that time, and the officers were released. For this service Mr. Bliss received the personal thanks of General Diaz.

" In the Summer of 1874 Mr. Bliss came to this city and became one of the office editors of Johnson's Encyclopædia, taking charge of the biographical department and contributing largely to several of the others. Over 1,500 of the biographies in this work were written by him, and the larger and more important ones bear his signature. He also contributed articles on Sanskrit and Portuguese literature, and on many other subjects requiring special preparation and learning. When the Encyclopædia was completed, in 1877, Mr. Bliss undertook, as editor and part proprietor, the management of a literary periodical, which he called the Library Table, but the time was unfavorable for such a publication and the venture proved disastrous. In 1878 he wrote for Hubbard Brothers, publishers, of Philadelphia, a history of the Russo-Turkish war, which ended that year, entitled "The Conquest of Turkey," and later in the same year became one of the editors of the New York Herald, having charge at first of the biographical department, and writing many hundreds of biographies of living men of note for future use. He also wrote editorials and geographical, historical and statistical sketches, for which his great range of information especially fitted him. In 1879 he again visited South America for the Herald, going this time to the west coast as war correspondent at the beginning of the war between Chili, Peru and Bolivia. He spent a great deal of time at Arica and Tacna, the headquarters of the Peruvian and Bolivian armies, and became a great favorite with Presidents Prado, of Peru, and Daza, of Bolivia. During this visit to South America he had several notable adventures, one of which was sustaining by himself a bombardment by the Peruvian monitor Huascar, while inside the hull of the abandoned man-of-war Waterce, which had been carried inland nearly a mile by the great tidal wave of which accompanied the earthquake of 1869. Mr. Bliss had walked out to the Waterce to inspect her. Just as he was about to enter the hull he heard a loud report, and a shell whizzed by him. Turning toward the sea he saw that the Huascar was engaging in target practice and using the Waterce as the target. With the instinct of the correspondent he scrambled into the hull and remained there two hours, until the bombardment ceased, accurately timing the shells and writing a report of his sensations.

" Mr. Bliss returned to New York in 1879, and two years later went to Mexico on a gold-hunting expedition on his own responsibility and in behalf of some friends. During this trip he underwent great hardships in the rough mountainous regions of Southern Mexico, being on horseback for forty days in the height of the rainy season, and suffering from exposure and lack of food. It was here that he sowed the seeds of the disease from which he is now suffering, and from the effects of which he has twice before been confined in St. Luke's Hospital. Since his return he has been unable to do any work except during a few months in 1883, when he acted as editor of the New Haven Morning News. Mr. Bliss was President of the American Philological Society, of this city, in 1879 and 1880, and is a member of the American Society for the Advancement of Science, of the American Antiquarian Society, of the American Ethnological Society, and of the American Oriental Society. For many years he has been a diligent and enthusiastic student of Oriental antiquities, particularly relative to Assyria, Babylonia and Egypt, and has more than once been on the point of undertaking an expedition to these regions, but was prevented by unforeseen circumstances."

TOGETHER 7 VOLS. IN 1. 4TO, CALF, GILT. Seville, 1552-53

VERY RARE AND BLACK LETTER. This collection belonged to the ill-fated Emperor Maximilian, and has his heraldic book plate affixed on one of the end papers.

The English bibliopole, Bernard Quaritch, asked £15 (i. e., §75) for only six of the above "Tratados" in his 1868 catalogue, and stated—"De Bure, in whose time only five parts were known, speaks of their excessive rarity. Richarderie has no other particularisation of parts than those noticed by De Bure; nor was Llorente, in his notice of the works of Las Casas, better informed, as he only mentions the first five." The above copy contains seven parts!!

So complete a collection of these rare pieces is not to be found, and very seldom in such fine condition. They attracted great attention throughout the Christian world when they first appeared, the first and most important one having been translated and printed in Latin, Spanish, German, Italian, French and English. The Carter-Brown Library, in Providence, possessed forty different editions of the Brevissima Relacion in various languages.

"The character of Las Casas may be inferred from his career. He was one of those to whose gifted minds are revealed those glorious moral truths which, like the lights of heaven, are fixed and the same for ever. He was a reformer, and had the virtues and errors of a reformer. He was inspired by one great and glorious idea. This was the key to all his thoughts, all that he said or wrote, and to every act of his long life. It was this which made him reckless of obstacles, led him to count too confidently on the coöperation of others, animated his discussion, sharpened his invective, too often steeped his pen in the gall of personal vituperation, led him to gross exaggeration, and a blind credulity of evil that rendered him unsafe as a counsellor, and unsuccessful in the practical concerns of life. . . . The best commentary on his character is the estimation which he obtained in the court of his sovereign. A liberal pension was settled on him after his last return from America, which he chiefly expended on charitable objects. No measure of importance relating to the Indians was taken without his advice. He lived to see the fruits of his efforts in the positive amelioration of their condition, and in the popular admission of those great truths which it had been the object of his life to unfold."—PRESCOTT, History Conquest of Mexico, Vol. I., p. 377.

- 262 DOBRIZHOFFER (Martin). An Account of the Abipones, an Equestrian People of Paraguay. 3 vols. 8vo, half calf. London, 1822
- Dobrizhoffer was one of those extraordinary men who organized in Paraguay a government that has not ceased to excite the wonder and perplex the reason of all who tried to comprehend its strange anomalies. For a century and a half it existed as a pure hierarchy, insulated and intact: more mysterious than the fabled Amazonian Republic, or the equally mythical El Dorado. For a half century succeeding it has remained the only example of a people professing to be free existing under a tyranny supported solely by themselves.

MOLINA'S RARE MEXICAN VOCABULARY, 1571.

- 578 MOLINA (PADRE FRAY ALONSO DE). VOCABULARIO EN LENGVA CASTELLANA Y MEXICANA. 4to, morocco (some pp. mended). Mexico, Antonio de Spinosa, 1571

EXTREMELY RARE. In the earlier editions of Brunet's Manual, this work is mentioned as being the earliest specimen of American printing known.

Lord Kingsborough's copy of the 1571 Molina cost him £50, i. e., $250. It was afterwards marked by Thorpe, of London, in 1843, for £28, i. e., $140.

The author, Molina, a native of Spain, was taken in early life to Mexico (1523), where he soon learnt the Mexican language, and even as a child acted as interpreter between the first missionaries and the native Indians. He afterwards devoted his life to the propagation of useful knowledge in the Mexican language, and his known works bear testimony to his great zeal.

- 579 MOLINA. Another copy. With numerous MS. notes in the margins. 4to, half morocco (portions of prefatory pages short, also last page of Index).
- 580 MOLINA. DESCRIPCION DEL REYNO DE GALIZIA. 4to, half sheep. Mondonedo, Augustin de Paz Acabose, 1550

BLACK LETTER and EXCESSIVELY RARE. A few pp. are in MS. facsimile. There is no title, but the colophon gives the date 1550, although in the prologue 1551 is named.

With this rare work is bound up the even rarer black letter—“GLOSA RELIGIOSA Y MUY CHRISTIANA sobre las coplas de DON JORGE MANRIQUE que confeca. Recuerde el Alma dormida Agoia de nueuo por su autor corregida y emendada.” There is neither date nor colophon. On the title is a figure of Death, with a coffin under his arm, and surrounded by the skulls of potentates.

 QUITE SCARCE. £5 17s. 6d., Puttick & Simpson, 1869.
 This wonderful work, to which the entire life of Father Sahagun was devoted, is beyond question the most important, as it is the most authentic, history of events, transpiring in the New World before its discovery by Columbus. All that relates to the religions, customs, government and wars of the Aztecs, was examined in a manner so critical, so patient and thorough that no history was ever conceived or brought forth with more labor.
- 815 SAHAGUN. Historia de la Conquista de Mexico. 4to, sheep (stained). Mexico, 1829
 RARE. This is a new version or recension of the last book of Sahagun's History, written by himself at a distance of twenty years from the time of composing his original work. Sahagun was one of the earliest of the Spanish missionaries. His work, published by Bustamente, for the first time, is of the utmost value for the history of the native Mexican civilization and customs. The work of Ixtlilxuchitl, as edited and published by Bustamente, is a supplement to the history of Sahagun.

"This history is without question the most complete in respect to the antiquity of Mexico of any hitherto published."—CLAVIGERO.

Juan de Torquemada, whom Alaman calls the "Livy of New Spain," studied in Mexico, where he took the habit of St. Francis and became the Provincial of the Order for that country. He wrote his "Indian Monarchy," after having collected everything which he could find that related to the history of the country, and the customs, manners, laws, etc., of its aboriginal inhabitants. This work forms a collection, indispensable to all who desire to know much of the ancient history of Mexico and its inhabitants, as well as to all those writers who extract their material from the stores of others.

The edition of 1723 is the most complete, having been edited by the indefatigable Barcia, and is preferred by scholars to the first edition, printed in 3 volumes at Madrid in 1613.

- 972 VEGA (El Inca Garcilaso de la). LA FLORIDA DEL' INCA HISTORIA DEL ADELANTADO HERNANDO DE SOTO—y el Ensaio Chronologico escrito por DON GABRIEL DE CARDENAS Y CANO. Folded pedigree. 2 vols. in 1. Old sheep (wormed). Madrid, 1723

The author was the son of one of the conquerors of Peru, Garlisco de la Vega, by the daughter of the Inca Hualpa Tapac and sister of Huayna Capac Inca, the last native monarch of Peru. He was so proud of both paternal and maternal origin, that while he assumed the Spanish name of the first, he was careful to assert his Incaial descent. He was evidently a gentleman of refinement and possessed of much more learning than was usually acquired by the conquistados themselves. That one of Indian blood and a descendant of the proud races of the Incas should have been the most industrious and careful historian of the evil fortunes of his race and the chronicler of the victories of their conquerors may well excite our surprise.
